tree, and, having bound all those who worked evil against mankind with searlet withes, threw them as food to tigers. In memory of this it was customary for officials on the last day of the year to have figures out in peach wood mounted upon reeds, and to paint the likeness of a tiger upon the doorway as a talisman. At present, adds Mr. Mayers, the names of the two brothers are pasted on the entrance doors of Chinese houses on New Year's eve, to gnard the dwelling from harm .- Peaches, too, figure largely in Chinese fairy-tales and my-thology, and formed part of the banquet prepared by the Royal Mother of the West when she paid a visit to the Emperor Cheng, better known as Shih Huang Ti; while a neach-garden was the scene of one of the most celebrated events in Chinose history, when the oath of brotherhood was taken between the three heroes who played so important a part in the historical romance of the Three Kingdoms. There are many other interesting details connected with the peach-tree in Chinese literature; but we have no space to enlarge upon them. Some pundits aver that, properly speaking, the peach is an emblem, not of Longevity, but of Death; while Western theorists have attempted to connect it with the True of the Knowledge of Good and Evil, whose fair fruit presented so fatal a temptation to our mother Eve. It seems, however, certain that, admissible in ascrifice: that those with double kennels were a mysterious but unfailing poison; and that the remature frustification of one species of peach-trac "as a barbinger of national estamity. All this may be very interesting, but it is not practical. We will conclude with two facts which have the merit of being both. The best manure for peach-trees, according to Chinese horticulturists, is snow; and a cold decection of pig's-head, poured about the roots and into the trunk itself, is a sure remedy for the insects which prey upon it .- N. INGLISH AND CHINESE DICTIONARY,
WITH THE PUNTI AND MANDARIN PRONUNCIATION. An Anglo-Chinese Dictionary, published at the Daily Press Office, Hongkong.

For comprehensiveness and practical service this Work stands unrivalled. All the new Hongkong and China by Messrs, J. & R. TENwords which the Chinese have of late years been NENT, Glasgow, and Messrs. DAVID CORSAB & the Straits Settlements. Batavia, Burmah, Ceycompelled to coin to express the numerous ob-Sons, Arbroath. jects in machinery, photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in extense. Each and every word is fully illustrated and axplained, forming exercises for students of a most instructive nature. Both the Court and Punti pronunciations are given, the accents being carefully marked on the best principle hitherto attained. The typography displays the success of an attempt to muke the Chinese and English type correspond in the size of body, thereby effecting a vast economy of Commercial Binding of every Size and Descrip space, achieving a clearness not previously attained, and dispensing with those vast margins and vacant spaces which have heretofore charmoterized Chinese publications. To illustrate the vast scope of the work, the QUALITY OF MATERIALS AND WORKMANSHIP following facts are submitted for consideration :-Chalmers' Vocabulary contains about 16,000 Chinese characters, and Medhurst's English and Chinese Dictionary about 100,000, whilst this work contains more than 50,000 English words, and upwards of 600,000 Chinese characters. Again, despite all the grammars and many as any other Dictionary bitherto pub. LECTION of VIEWS, than any other in the is requested that the letters be posted if possible

For practical purposes the arrangement of of the surrounding country, including KIUNGthe work is so complete, that a reference to its CHOW, have recently been added to the above. pages enables a person who understands English to communicate effectively with natives who and high finish, painted by native artists under Letters, per 2 oz. 10 Cents. understand nothing but Chinese. In this respect. careful supervision, from 37.
the work will be found indispensable to all D. K. GEIFFITH holds aut Europeans residing in China, and to the natives themselves it explains subjects fully with which very few indeed of them are perfectly acquainted. To parties resident in England and interested in China it cannot but be invaluable occasionally.

Fell like a cannon shot; Burst like a thunderbolt ; Crashed like a hurricane: Broke thro' the mass from below : Drove thro' the midst of the foe : Plunged up and down, to and fro ; Rode flashing blow upon blow, Brave Inniskillings and Groys, Whirling their asbres in circles of light! And some of us, all in amaze, Who were held for a while from the fight, And were only standing at gaze. When the dark-muffied Russian crowd Folded its wings from the left and the right, And roll'd them around like a cloud-O, mad for the charge and the battle were we When our good redecats sank from sight Like drops of blood in a dark-grey sea ;

And we turn'd to each other, muttering, all dismay Lost are the gallant three hundred—the Heavy Brigade!

But they rode like victors and lords Through the forest of lances and swords, In the heart of the Russian hordes They rode or they stood at bay. Struck with the sword hand and slow. Down with the bridle hand draw The for from the saddle, and throw Under foot there in the fray. Raged like a storm, or stood like a rock In the ways of a stormy day : Till, suddenly, shook upon shook, Stagger'd the mass from without; For our men gailop't up with a cheer and a shout, And the Russian surged and water'd and red'd Up the hill, up the hill, up the hill, out of the field, Over the brow and away.

Glory to each and to all and the charge that they made Glory to all the three hundred—the Heavy Brigade! - Nore .- The "three hundred" of the " Heavy Brigade" who made this famous charge were the Scots Greys and the 2nd squadron of Inniskillings | the remainder of the "Heavy Brigade": subsequently dash.

THE PEDIGREE OF THE BONARS One of the twelve who signed the representation regarding the "Marrow Modern Divinity" in 1721 was the Rev. John Bonar, M.A., minister of Torphichen, to which paried he had been ordained in 1698; He was altogether in sympathy with the " Marrow" brethern, and in 1742, notwithstanding his age and infirmity, he made a journey to Cambuslang to witness the great ravival of religion there, and to assist at se dispensation of the communion to the assembled thousands. He died in 1747, when verging on the 80th year of his age. The story of this man's youth is a curious one. He was a son of the Laird of Kilgraston. in Perthebire, and his father was a bigoted Episcopalian. When John was a student at St. Andrews, his father actually instigated the Principal to threaten him with expulsion from the University unless he took the communion in the alien Episcopal form. This threat was administered, but without success. In his "Theology of Consolation," first published, the Rev. David Agnew reminds us of the interesting fact that this old worthy was the progenitor of the Bonars whom we all know so well to-day—the three brothers, the Rev. John James Bonar, of Graenock : Dr. Horatius Bonar the hymnwriter; and Dr. Andrew Bonar, of Glasgow, the biographer of the sainted MacCheyne: In each generation descendants-of the old Torphichen paster of the seventeenth century have occupied an honoured place in the ministry. His son was the minister of Fetlar, in Shetland; his grandson was the minister of Cockpen, and afterwards of Perth ; a great-grandson was the minister of Cramond; and a great-greatgrandson was the minister of Larbort, and latterly the Convener of the Colonial Committee of the Free Church. The father of the three Bonars of to-day was the eldest son of the minister of Perth, and was solicitor of Excise. There can be few cases in the Scottish Church to match this; indeed, it is probably unique. -Literary Notes in Daily Mail.
